About the Event:

- The EUSA European Universities Rowing Championship is a three-day event in Zagreb that will gather around 450 participants from 80 universities across 19 countries.
- The entire program will take place at the regatta course on Lake Jarun, with the Opening Ceremony and the final races being the highlight events.
- Croatia and Zagreb were awarded the hosting rights for the EUSA European Universities Rowing Championship in June 2024, after the original host, Ankara, the capital of Turkey, withdrew due to organizational challenges two months before the event. Given Croatia's long-standing experience in organizing numerous university competitions and its reputation within the European academic sports community, EUSA offered the hosting rights to the Croatian Academic Sports Federation.
- Zagreb will also host the championship in 2026, organized by the Zagreb Academic Sports Association.

Information and Highlights:

- Croatia and Zagreb previously hosted this event in 2008 during the 4th edition of the EUSA Rowing Championship, which featured 426 competitors and 126 crews, including some well-known rowing athletes. University rowing competitions were also held at the European Universities Games in 2016, and Zagreb hosted the FISU World University Rowing Championship in 1998, which was the first international academic sports competition in independent Croatia.
- Spectator access to the event is free, and live streaming will be available via the official YouTube channel of the championship.
- At EUSA European Universities Championships, students compete as representatives of their universities, regardless of their country of origin.
