MEDIA ANNOUNCEMENT

Olympic Students, the Lončarić Brothers, Among Croatian Representatives at the European Universities Rowing Championship

Just one week remains until the start of the 14th EUSA European Universities Rowing Championship, set to take place from August 28 to 31, 2024, at Lake Jarun in Zagreb!

This competition will bring together over 400 participants from 68 universities across 17 European countries. Among the athletes representing Croatian universities will be students from the University of Zagreb, the University of Split, and the Međimurje University of Applied Sciences in Čakovec, including the Lončarić brothers, who recently competed in the Paris Olympic Games.

The opening ceremony will be held on Thursday, August 29, at 7:00 PM, while the final races, attended by Martin Sinković, the current Olympic rowing gold medalist and partner of this event, will take place on Saturday, August 31.

The University of Zagreb's team will feature 20 representatives, the University of Split will have three, and the Međimurje University of Applied Sciences in Čakovec will be represented by one athlete. Croatian students will compete in various disciplines, including single sculls, lightweight single sculls, double sculls, lightweight double sculls, quadruple sculls, and eights.

The event is free to attend, and all races will be live-streamed via the official YouTube channel of the championship (@EUSARowing). The rowing competitions will be held on the regatta course at Lake Jarun, while the athletes' village will be located at the "Stjepan Radić" Student Dormitory.

We invite all rowing enthusiasts and media representatives to come and support our competitors and enjoy this extraordinary event celebrating university sports and unity!
